This is a fun creepy ride so far.

While it seems simple enough (don't take your eyes off them as you progress through the levels) it's very difficult to maneuver and keep them in your sights.

I just started doing a video series on it and am intrigued on where it is going to go from here: <https://youtu.be/nlczB46Qpdw>. Nice game, but doesn't work correctly on 1440p res. I like the game but... I sometimes faze through walls. Pick it up on sale, otherwise a little expensive.

The Wood Elves are a great elven team. More fragile than the High Elves, but have simply the best blitzer in the game in the Wardancer. Who's starting stats are what other teams blitzers aspire to! Great team to run around with, bashing teams require a bit of care. Looking great in leggings.... It's a really shallow mobile port with busty women and jiggle physics that try to get you to play/buy.

Not enough info? ...really? Well...

Game works on a 3-star rating system for each mission. The game treats you like an invalid by constantly reminding you how to play (despite it being really simple and straightforward), the progression that exists doesn't really improve or build upon the gameplay. Maps are incredibly minimalistic. There is nothing to interact with, nothing to move or climb upon.

If it goes on sale and you want something super casual then... maybe. Otherwise I can't recommend this. There are MUCH better choices when it comes to both action and sex-appeal.. It's unique, entertaining and fun. Never added the promised split screen co-op that I gave them money for. Failure to follow through on promises is never a good sign.. I really enjoyed this fun time passer, has all the usual bad puns and light humour you expect to find in a point and click game. I did have to think a bit for some of the puzzles.. To summarize in few words - the game is a gorgeous mixture of Chess with Deflektor, taking the best ideas from both. ( Btw. - does anyone know what the 2nd game is? ;-) ) a computer game for some 8bit machines from 80's, you may find some free remakes in the net, eg. Deflektor X4)

Fans of lasers and even light sabres will realize soon that there is not much of an FPS here ;-) Just a 'boring', almost static board with some 2-colour pieces. And some rules that you have to read about - on how to play and win or lose... Briefly - you have to destroy opponent's Pharaoh. To achieve that you have to use the pieces to reflect a laser beam so that the enemy's Pharaoh is shot with the laser beam. The pieces, depending on their type and orientation (side on which they receive the beam), can either reflect the laser, absorb it without damage or be destroyed. The 2 players play by turns, in which a single piece can be moved or turned. To win the player have to secure his own Pharaoh and find a way either to destroy or to use(!) the enemy's pieces to shoot the other Pharaoh. Before the opponent does it to his of course... So basically often the decision is whether the move can be offensive or defensive (can you afford losing a piece or have to do something to save it, depending on how it affects the situation on the board later - very much like in Chess).

So in each move there is plenty of possibilities and silly movements ends badly very soon. If you are not careful you can actually lose after your own move (yes, you can destroy your own 'Pharaoh'... - not like in Chess ;-). And one of the first things you learn is that you have to be careful maybe even more than in Chess - because your pieces might be used against you! So you have to analyse the position and possibilities of the attack using all the pieces on the board - but you can control movement of half, and any move you do can be then used against you! Really cool, heh? ;-)

Comparing to the mentioned games the rules are:

- a lot simpler than in Chess - very few types of pieces with simple movement
- more complex than in Deflektor - but no energy or time limits, as the game is turn-based, not real-time

The game is surprisingly smooth to learn, ie. much easier and faster to learn than chess. And be warned - the gameplay is kind of addictive. I often started the program just to play one-two games... and yeah, sure... At least an hour gone...

Implementation of this kind of game could be very simple (concerning graphics etc), it could be even simple 2D board with symbolic pieces - but most of today's players would not even look at it. So the art part is perfectly OK. (really nothing more needed). Maybe music could be better... Or more ambient (or just could let to choose the genre). But not necessarily, these are really not why you buy and play this kind of game...

I'd say it is a game of the best kind - it has simple rules, but the gameplay can be complex and hard to win. And as I wrote earlier - it is easy to start playing it, much easier than Chess (and therefore it is initially more fun I guess; later - it depends...)

Those who like logic or tactics/strategy games should be delighted - and especially if you like Chess you will definitely like this one!

I'm having a great time playing this game. The multiplayer is frenetic in a good way. There's tons of variety too, like lots of modifiers for the matches and tons of break the target levels. The art style is also pretty cool.. No fullscreen resolution so you get a really small 800x600 with blackbars locked good luck at reading the how-to-play guide. No lewd scene and no controls like a options to configure.. Bad.

- Not optimized for keyboard controls.
- Not possible to rebind keys.
- Poor replayability.. Upgrade Your Hero And Build Your Harem!
For Great Justice!

This game is dripping with atmosphere, and it's nice to have a game in this genre that you can just buy and then that's it, it doesn't try to milk you for cash. The visual effects for this game are top notch, and the end result is... well imagine if adventure time was on even more crack, and possibly some acid. Definitely some acid. Great music too. A perfect game to play when your too tired for something too involved and just want to chill.. I have to say it "I need that d.i.c.k.h.e.a.d" lololololol fkn funny, this is really good for the sale price, I would highly recommend, my only gripe is the fact you cannot use AWSO for movement keys you have to use the arrow keys, sorry but that is lame on a game these days it's just too awkward to use, but on the plus side if you have one it works great and best with an Xbox controller sweet!

Can only recommend you buy if you have the Xbox controller, I would not bother if you don't.

Plus:

Funny

Fun to play

Achievements and cards

Mr D.i.c.k.

Cheap on sale

Neg:

Use of arrow keys for movement and not AWSO.

Cannot remap keys..... really!

Gfx are s.h.i.t.

Not worth full price but still recommend when on sale.

Update 3.17 is live now - NEW MAP & HALLOWEEN EVENT!:

Welcome to the latest content update for Bloons TD 5! Let's take a look at what's new!

New Content. Update 2.4.3 - Minor fixes:

- Fixed level completed achievement not unlocking when weapons are used
- Fixed Helicopter collective not getting disassembled. Biggest update ever:

Alright everyone. I am very excited to announce the biggest update ever. I have uploaded a brand new video on the store page that shows the Dragon King Boss fight as an example. Not only have I worked on the play mechanics of the game to really bring you a hard core hack and slash RPG game, I have also done drastic work on the overall level design which you can see in a preview of what's to come in the link below. I have also fixed over 1300 bugs. As you can see from both the videos The Sacred Stone is really becoming a work of art, and I'm really going to be bringing you gamers something very unique and beautiful to play. I expect the new update to be out before X-mas.

EPIC SETTINGS Are shown in the video, Expect the Effects are set to Medium. GTX 1050
